New Jewish Ambulance Service Joins North West London

A Jewish ambulance service unit called ‘Hatzala’ has started operating in an additional neighbourhood of North West London. It is the fifth one in the country.

The medical teams who run the service are made up of volunteers only. These are all people who have taken advanced courses in first aid before joining the service. They have the necessary skills to provide complete medical emergency care twenty four hours a day, seven days a week. The ambulances have life-saving medical equipment.

The ambulances and the volunteers are linked to a centre that receives the emergency calls via a special communication system. The volunteers are ready to stop whatever they are doing, at any time, in order to respond to a medical emergency.

Hatzala is a charitable organisation which works very successfully alongside the London Ambulance Service.
